Contents

In this module, the possibilities, methods and knowledge goals* of analytical development of composed music are studied. Basic knowledge of music theory is applied to selected works of text-bound or instrumental music. Historical composition theory, traditional academic music theory and current music theory discourses will be presented as complementary foundations of musical analysis.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has basic knowledge of several methods of musical analysis and has applied an exemplary selection of them. He/she is able to analyse composed music of the European-Western tradition in an appropriate manner within the framework of a clearly defined task and to present the results.
