The lecture discusses selected issues in canon law that relate to topics included in the curricula for Gymnasium schools. Issues to be covered include (but are not limited to): the parish and the diocese, regulations governing the sacraments, the relationship between Church and state as well as marriage and family. The main aim of the lecture is to familiarise students with the principles of canon law that are relevant to the respective topics and to teach students how to teach these topics in a manner that complies with canon law requirements. The module also provides an introduction to the identity of practical theology as an empirically-oriented discipline. The courses in the area of religious education situate the methods in the discipline within the context of standard philosophies of science; they discuss different research methods as well as their advantages and limitations. The courses use examples from research conducted at the Chair or other institutions to illustrate the matter discussed.
Intended learning outcomes
At the end of the course, students will have developed a fundamental understanding of the regulations governing the Church and its activities and will be able to reflect upon the normative legal principles that underlie selected issues. Students will have become familiar with key theories in an empirically informed practical theology and will have gained an insight into selected current findings from empirical research. They will have gained an overview of methods of empirical research and will have achieved basic proficiency in these methods.
