Contents
Complex analyses of larger data sets to solve topical research questions; creation of tables and figures suitable for presentation in a scientific publication; additional statistical methods will be taught as needed for the specific task.
Intended learning outcomes
The students become familiar with a topical research question and the related data set. They perform all statistical analyses to answer the questions and learn to present the results in tables and figures. They also contribute to presenting the statistical methods and results, aiming at a co-authorship of a scientific publication in a peer-reviewed journal.
