Contents
This module serves as an introduction to China's economic discourse. Based on the lecture of historic and recent newspaper articles, articles published in academic journals and edited volumes, mainly from mainland China, students are provided an overview over different discourses related to China's rapidly changing economy and its impact on politics and society that have emerged during the period of reform and opening up. Before the theoretical background of appropriate discourse analysis theories students will produce a series of reflection papers, in which they analyze and discuss different aspects of China's economic reforms.
Intended learning outcomes
Students gradually improve their skills in critical literature analysis and literature discussion as well as the drafting and writing of short reflexion papers. Students gain fundamental knowledge of discourse analysis theories.
