Contents
This module provides continued training in the Classical Chinese literary language, its grammar and lexicon, and a range of source texts (philosophy, history, literature) from the medieval to the late imperial period that are translated into English in class. The analysis of syntactical features is based on a structural approach to grammar. This course also further develops skills in reading full-form characters and in the analysis of prosodical features based on early pronunciations. Moreover, it introduces elements of cultural-historical and literary knowledge that are necessary for an appropriate contextualization, interpretation and translation of the source texts in the reading program.
Intended learning outcomes
This module enables students to read and understand a range of more challenging source texts in Classical Chinese, and to translate them into English. Students further develop their analytical abilities to handle grammatical and other difficulties, to account for generic features, and to appropriately contextualize the texts.
