One of the following sub-modules has to be chosen. The sub-module and exam course older German literary studies (o4-DtGy-EM-ÄDLSW-1): Recapitulation and consolidation of examination relevant literary and literary historical knowledge. Critical examination of current research approaches and their use on texts that are relevant for the state examination. The sub-module and exam course older German literary studies (o4-DtGy-EM-ÄDLSW-2): Recapitulation and consolidation of linguistic knowledge. Critical examination of current research approaches. In respect of the state examination, in which the analysis competence of different sub-areas of linguistics will be required, the knowledge will be applied on specific text analyses that will be chosen from the area of modern German and early linguistic periods (sign and form system, syntax, semantics, pragmatics, textual linguistics).
Intended learning outcomes
Concerning the sub-module and examination course older German literature: Students possess consolidated knowledge of German literature of the pre-modern period; They are able to classify the knowledge into systematic correlations and to apply this knowledge to the independent text analysis. Concerning the sub-module and examination course German linguistics: Students possess consolidated knowledge of German linguistics (sign and form system, syntax, semantics, pragmatics, text linguistics) and concerning the history of the German language; They are able to constitute the knowledge systematically and to apply it to the analysis of modern German and historical texts of former linguistic periods independently.
