Contents
The module "Regions, Spaces, Environments" provides students with specific skills of regional and spatial features of US-American society as well as about the influence of the relation between nature and culture on processes of individual, social and national identity formation by means of representative examples from literature, art, film, music, philosophy and/or popular culture. This includes issues concerning the literary and cultural reflection of transnational exchange processes as well as of processes regarding the cultural, political and economic globalisation.
Intended learning outcomes
After successful completion of the module, students are able to understand and evaluate literature and culture as critical forms of summarising historical and current globalisation processes, to discuss argumentatively and formulate literary and cultural issues from a transnational perspective, to analyse and argumentatively discuss theoretical issues concerning the spatialisation of social, cultural and political identity in the 21st century.
