Contents

The module covers the specialised dealing with individual authors, epochs and genres of the English literature of Great Britain and its former colonies. On the one hand, authors will be classified in their historical epochs. On the other hand, the module focuses on specific genres in accordance with their epochs (e.g. Renaissance Drama, Romantic Poetry) that will be considered differentiated and analysed regarding the literary and historical significance.

Intended learning outcomes

After successful completion of the module, students have - specialised knowledge of authors and their works as well as their historical epoch, - specialised knowledge of a genre or genre group as well as their central historical and cultural conditions and contexts, - a further consolidation of hermeneutic competences. Moreover, students are able to identify and critically discuss coherences between authors, epochs and genres actively.
