Contents
This module offers the opportunity to extensively turn to a research project on a linguistic issue on an academic level, apply acquired knowledge and present the results of one's own project work in the context of guided self-study and in a group.
Intended learning outcomes
After attending the module, students will be able to grasp a field of research in English linguistics and to evaluate its complex historical and theoretical contexts, to process concepts, methods and objects of investigation in this field of research by applying their own approach and to extend it by means of practical application, to describe a research project of their own on the basis of the current state of research and to discuss its issues, solutions, and results on an academic level.
