Duration	Module level	Other prerequisites
1 semester	graduate	By way of exception, additional prerequisites are listed in the section on assessments.
Contents
The module provides students with basic knowledge of the sub-subject German linguistics: Basic principles of the language and linguistics, overview of linguistic disciplines, basic methods of structural analysis of language (theory of semiotics, phonology, phonetics, graphemics, morphology, word formation and linguistic semantics). Different philosophies of life, religions, conceptions of man, social action patterns and other socially relevant identity constructions and their functionality for the analysis of intercultural communication will be discussed exemplarily.
Intended learning outcomes
Students are familiar with the terminological basis, the important perspectives as well as fundamental literature of linguistics and are able to refer these skills in incipient stages to individual issues of intercultural communication. They promote their oral and written competences in production and reception theoretical dimension. They are capable to identify specific communication conditions and problems from an intercultural perspective and if necessary, think about optimisation possibilities of cultural exchange and intercultural cooperation and initiate theoretically based and practically sensitised improvement strategies.
