Contents

Production of a scientifically sound master's thesis within the time frame that considers specific foreign language didactic, foreign language philological topics as well as German regional and cultural studies and which can be elaborated practical and application-oriented. This comprises, depending on the contentual profiling, the inclusion and discussion of appropriate theories, interdisciplinary references and latest methods as well as the related literature search.

Intended learning outcomes

Students will acquire the skill to formulate and to study a specific foreign language philological question among academically important points within the given time frame and to practise this acquired skill on generic topics independently. Additionally, students have to interpret, present and discuss the ascertained results appropriately, in perspectival richness and application-oriented.
