The module is designed to provide students with a basic overview as well as exemplary consolidation of fundamental genres of Greek and Roman sculptures, taking into account the stylistic development, topographical particularities and the manual as well as technical manufacturing processes.
Intended learning outcomes
According to genre-specific methodologies, the students are able to process Greek and Roman sculptures and to classify them chronologically and in a stylised and hermeneutic way. Furthermore, they develop a critical understanding of current method and research discussions and are familiar with the respective specialised literature.
