Contents

In this module, sources, musical evidence and cultural-historical conditions of European music history from the early modern period (around 1420) to the Enlightenment and their music-historiographical interpretation are studied. The three courses, which are coordinated in terms of content, deal with persons, phenomena and processes of music history. Using significant examples, the basics of specific methods of the humanities (such as philological, descriptive, comparative and analytical working methods) and of speaking about music (such as specialist terminology and use of metaphor) are taught, reflected and practised.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has basic knowledge of European music history from the early modern period to the Enlightenment, its sources and its phenomena. The student is able to classify this knowledge in historical contexts. The student is able to present and interpret music-historical phenomena appropriately on this basis.
