This module introduces central aspects of performance development in sports and training and establishes exemplary connections to sports practice on the basis of the individual sports swimming. The module is divided into two seminars: In one seminar, we examine general scientific aspects of sports training in individual sports and we use the example of swimming (I+II) and its specific basic skills to specify these aspects in another seminar.
Intended learning outcomes
The students acquire specific professional skills in swimming and essential professional skills in characterising types of sports in view of movement science. As a result, they are able to teach profound and target-oriented sports exercises and techniques.
