Contents
Human-computer interaction is a discipline at the interface between social and computer science. It explores how humans use devices and systems and how the usefulness and the usability of these devices and systems may be enhanced. In the early years of the discipline, the development of theories and models was influenced mainly by theories from the cognitive sciences on perception, motor functions, memory etc. The development in the cognitive sciences, the increasingly international character and rapid technological progress then led to both a specialisation and new theoretical approaches in HCI. This seminar will explore classic as well as new theoretical approaches and methods in HCI trying to find a common framework despite all specialisation and fragmentation.
