Contents

The module is aimed at practical and project-related knowledge and experience. Within the module, students scientifically examine a self-chosen question or task in small groups and transform it into a project. The project work includes the independent conception, implementation and evaluation of the project as well as the documentation of the project's progress and the essential work results.

Intended learning outcomes

Students are able to analyze, reason and independently work on pedagogical topics with regard to their transfer into practice. They can conceive, implement, and document a project idea in a scientific context. In this regard they are familiar with project development processes and understand assessment and evaluation standards in order to plan, independently execute, reflect and evaluate educational projects. They will be able to recognize their own strengths and weaknesses in project group processes and develop themselves accordingly.
