Contents
In this module we discuss, evaluate and transfer basic connections between goals, contents and methods of physical education to specific teaching concepts for various movement fields and types of sports. For this purpose, we examine planning, conception and evaluation processes in the context of subject didactics. Furthermore, we test and evaluate differentiated teaching scenarios for various movement settings and target groups whilst taking into account the possibilities to promote basic infantile development through movement, game and sports offers. We especially focus on movement, game and sports offers in view of their possibilities to compensate for psychophysical overload and one-sided stress. In this context we also study the requirements and consequences of cultural change processes in the context of sports and movement culture.
Intended learning outcomes
The students have essential professional skills in reviewing, classifying and evaluating the methodical principles of physical education and school sports in a conceptual manner. They know the effects of sport concepts and subject-didactic concepts on teaching practice and can use these concepts in practice to plan physical education classes and conceptualise school sports programmes. At the same time, they have basic evaluation competencies which enable them to be critical of such planning and evaluating guidelines. The students have professional skills in conceptually reviewing sports and exercise offers that have a compensatory effect as well as their subject-didactic implementation.
