Content and Objectives of the Programme

The Master’s program in German as Foreign Language Philology is intended especially for non-native speakers whose first degree is from an academic institution outside the German-speaking area and who wish both to improve their knowledge of German language and literature and to engage in the regional study of German culture.

By contrast to classical philology, this program is more strongly oriented toward applied linguistics. It approaches traditional material (language and literature) from an interdisciplinary perspective and methodology. Topics of study include didactics, history, ethnology and cross-cultural studies. Furthermore, the program develops students’ practical skills in critical analysis, research, and writing.

The aim of the program is to familiarize students with selected topics of German as Foreign Language Philology and to prepare them to complete a Master’s thesis in which scientific methods are applied to independently identified and critically researched problems in order to develop original arguments, interpretations, and solutions. The Master’s thesis requires that students work independently within a limited time and subject area, using the interdisciplinary methods and scientific perspectives of the program.

A final Thesis Colloquium provides the opportunity for candidates to demonstrate comprehensive knowledge of their field of study and requires them to defend their Master’s theses.

The Master’s degree is internationally recognized and enables students to pursue doctoral studies, a stepping-stone to a position in the academic world. Alternatively, it opens a variety of career opportunities on national and international levels. Graduates of this program are uniquely prepared for numerous career options, especially those in which the disciplinary interests of undergraduate degrees are enriched by graduate study in German language and culture. These students are ideally suited to serve in positions that require international experience, typically involving knowledge of the cultural, social and scientific surroundings of their native countries and the corresponding environments in Germany.

Conventions

Unless otherwise stated, courses and assessments will be held in German, assessments will be offered every semester and modules are not creditable for bonus.

Notes

Should there be the option to choose between several methods of assessment, the lecturer will agree with the module coordinator on the method of assessment to be used in the current semester by two weeks after the start of the course at the latest and will communicate this in the customary manner.

Should the module comprise more than one graded assessment, all assessments will be equally weighted, unless otherwise stated below.

Should the assessment comprise several individual assessments, successful completion of the module will require successful completion of all individual assessments.

In accordance with the general regulations governing the degree subject described in this module catalogue:

ASPO2009

associated official publications (FSB (subject-specific provisions)/SFB (list of modules)):

16-Jun-2011 (2011-51) Doublet to PO version 2011

This module handbook seeks to render, as accurately as possible, the data that is of statutory relevance according to the examination regulations of the degree subject. However, only the FSB (subject-specific provisions) and SFB (list of modules) in their officially published versions shall be legally binding. In the case of doubt, the provisions on, in particular, module assessments specified in the FSB/SFB shall prevail.

The module gives a basic insight into the research of everyday and popular cultures from the view of European Ethnology/ Cultural Anthropology (empirical cultural science, Cultural Anthropology). For a long time, it has only been the "nice things" of the former "cultures" that had to be saved, but for a modern Cultural Anthropology, the testimonies of everyday and popular mass culture are of great significance: The dramatic changes of the pre-industrial world changing into an industrial and post-industrial world are visible. This changed research concept of the cultural analysis, the most important technical terms, sources, methods as well as selected working areas and technical relevant basics of the scientific work covers an overall introduction to the research field culture. The acquired basics will be consolidated and differentiated on the basis of a generic topic area. Thus, the study of specific everyday and popular cultures in history and the present age takes place, taking into account the regional, particularly the dealing with Bavarian regions, but also cultural and intercultural environment issues. Hence, the module provides a detailed background knowledge of the field of experience of pupils and students that can be applied to the school practice at the same time.
Intended learning outcomes
Students acquire the following competences: - Fundamental knowledge of scientific working methods; -Basic knowledge of folkloric and ethnological cultural analysis; -Advanced knowledge of a generic working field from the area of cultural analysis or Ethnography based on generic everyday and popular cultures from the past and present age; Dealing autonomously with cultural phenomena and processes based on typical examples; - Students acquire general cultural practice and intercultural competences in a selected field of study, especially for the implementation of school lessons (e.g. Regional and Cultural studies, History, Ethics, Religious Education).

Contents
Production of a scientifically sound master's thesis within the time frame that considers specific foreign language didactic, foreign language philological topics as well as German regional and cultural studies and which can be elaborated practical and application-oriented. This comprises, depending on the contentual profiling, the inclusion and discussion of appropriate theories, interdisciplinary references and latest methods as well as the related literature search.
Intended learning outcomes
Students will acquire the skill to formulate and to study a specific foreign language philological question among academically important points within the given time frame and to practise this acquired skill on generic topics independently. Additionally, students have to interpret, present and discuss the ascertained results appropriately, in perspectival richness and application-oriented.
