Cultures and societies are designed via narratives. Humans are narrating beings, who process events and give meaning to their everyday lives by telling stories. Cultures and their agents do not only create oral, written, analogue and digital narrations, but also tell stories through pictures, actions, arts, rituals and customs. Narratives and stories as well as meta-narratives, such as the narration of "the linear progress", are general expressions of cultural processes, as well as storage media for cultural processes and, more recently, subjects of cultural-analytic research.

Intended learning outcomes

The module Narrative Cultures provides the students with skills in understanding a wide diversity of mediatized or materialized narratives in order to learn how to analyze narrative everyday cultures.

Students exemplary increase their knowledge of understanding and analyzing cultural processes in various societal and scientific fields of practice. Knowledge is understood here as a social practice that structures everyday life. In order to gain insight into the diverse ways of knowledge production, the various actors who share and design knowledge, as well as the respective geographical spaces - in their historical and current dimensions - have to be considered.

Intended learning outcomes

Students increase their knowledge of disciplinary history. They learn how to critically reflect divergent aspects and to analyze and interpret these within disciplinary contexts.

Contents

In European Ethnology, spaces are viewed, among other things, as results of the practices of various actors. They are also seen in European ethnological cultural analysis as fields of action that have been produced in each case as well as repeatedly renewed and which in turn shape and enable society in a variety of ways. The making, design and change of urban or rural spaces are of equal interest just as regional or local spaces to include co-designing or designed entities. A focus of this module is the cultural analysis of numerous spaces as made by actors and viewed from a past, present and future perspective.

Intended learning outcomes

Students gain further knowledge in the field of European ethnology analysis of space and social entities. The main focus is current theoretical concepts and methods to include classical and current empirical studies.

In the seminar, students practise working with different research approaches, groups of sources, and controversial interpretations, investigating selected topics that were covered in the lecture(s). The exercise gives students an opportunity to consolidate, under expert guidance, the skills they have developed in the seminar. This research module always aims to equip students with the skills and methods they are likely to need for their theses.

Intended learning outcomes

The research module comprises a lecture, an exercise, and a seminar. Students develop the knowledge and skills they need to independently investigate historical problems. They reflect on the use of historical sources and practise working with these, drawing on the knowledge and skills they have acquired in the area of historical auxiliary sciences. In addition, they practise solving methodological and theoretical problems in history. Participation in this module also activates the language skills that are needed for historical research.
