Content and Objectives of the Programme

The BA degree program in Protestant Theology is designed as a first professional qualification and teaches in-depth knowledge of Protestant Theology and its disciplines: Old Testament, New Testament, Church History, Systematic Theology, Doctrine, Ethics, Religious Education, and Religious Studies. Furthermore, the program aims to foster competence in dealing responsibly with the acquired knowledge. It prepares students to embrace and fulfill the multifaceted requirements of later working life and to complete tasks independently. Students develop key transferable skills in critical analysis, argumentation and communication that are indispensable in a wide variety of occupations, and they learn to represent independent, supra-individual and well-founded positions. The main occupational focus of Würzburg’s BA program lies in the formation of a (supra-individual) personality that enables students to deal professionally in a dialogue initiating and goal-oriented way with topics of all social and cultural trouble spots that pertain to religion in the broadest sense. The formation of a supra-individual personality is achieved mainly through acquiring subject-specific theological knowledge and learning to form sound judgment. At the completion of the program and with the Bachelor’s thesis the candidate has to prove his or her ability to overview fundamental questions in a wider context, his or her skills to apply scientific methods appropriately, and in how far prescribed educational objectives were reached.
Abbreviations used

Course types: E = field trip, K = colloquium, O = conversatorium, P = placement/lab course, R = project, S = seminar, T = tutorial, Ü = exercise, V = lecture

Term: SS = summer semester, WS = winter semester

Conventions

Unless otherwise stated, courses and assessments will be held in German, assessments will be offered every semester and modules are not creditable for bonus.

Notes

Should there be the option to choose between several methods of assessment, the lecturer will agree with the module coordinator on the method of assessment to be used in the current semester by two weeks after the start of the course at the latest and will communicate this in the customary manner.

Should the module comprise more than one graded assessment, all assessments will be equally weighted, unless otherwise stated below.

Should the assessment comprise several individual assessments, successful completion of the module will require successful completion of all individual assessments.

In accordance with the general regulations governing the degree subject described in this module catalogue:

ASPO2009

associated official publications (FSB (subject-specific provisions)/SFB (list of modules)):

21-Feb-2012 (2012-26)

This module handbook seeks to render, as accurately as possible, the data that is of statutory relevance according to the examination regulations of the degree subject. However, only the FSB (subject-specific provisions) and SFB (list of modules) in their officially published versions shall be legally binding. In the case of doubt, the provisions on, in particular, module assessments specified in the FSB/SFB shall prevail.

Contents
An introduction to the theory of teaching topics in religion in the context of the other aspects of religious education. The module provides systematic training in the areas of theology and religious education for future religious education teachers. It focuses on didactic and methodological aspects: teaching and learning in the religious education classroom from an education theory point of view.

Intended learning outcomes
At the end of the course, students will have developed a reflected understanding of phenomena in religion and religious education. They will have developed the ability to recognise the connections between religion and education and take their own position on religious education.

Introduction to theological ways of thinking in biblical theology, dogmatics, and church history based on current or central theological and exegetical texts.

Intended learning outcomes

In the area of dogmatics, students will have developed the ability to understand and describe complex theological texts, recognise the inherent problems, communicate their content with other positions, and express their own well-justified point of view. In the area of biblical theology, students will have developed the ability to independently interpret texts exegetically, to situate their contents within the context of current research problems and problems currently faced by society, and to discuss them in an appropriate manner. Students will also have developed an awareness of the historical development of Christianity as well as the changes and transformations it has undergone on the basis of present-day realities.

Practical section 1: A placement at an institution (publisher, social service, or other institution) with a duration of at least two weeks. At the end of their placements, students will prepare a report on their experiences relating to a dogmatic, ethical, church historical, theological, or exegetical problem. Practical section 2: Writing and publishing a review of a current publication.

Intended learning outcomes

At the end of the course, students will be able to reflect upon their own practical experiences and observations relating to topics in theology, in a problem and solution-oriented manner, and to convey current situations through theoretical approaches. They will be able to write short texts tailored to an audience and will have gained insights into the stages of creating a text from the first draft to publication. They will recognise publishing market mechanisms.

Contents

Correct version: This course aims to consolidate the students’ theological thinking, expression, and writing skills on the basis of current debates and important texts. [Version 1: Writing a Bachelor’s thesis in accordance with the principles of good scholarly practice.] [Version 2: Biblical theology. Grounding in the texts of the Old Testament, their connection, meaning in a historical context, and introduction to the exegetical methods.]

Intended learning outcomes

At the end of the course, students will have developed a comprehensive knowledge of systematic theology. They will be able to recognise topics in their complex interrelations with all other topics in theology - in particular theories of religion - and to describe them orally and in writing. Students will have adopted a supra-individual position on all topics based on a sharpened awareness of problems and sound arguments. They will be able to interpret topics in theology within the context of current social problems and discuss potential solutions.

Contents
Information literacy in an academic context: search strategies and tools, using the library's electronic resources, resources for humanities: bibliographies, databases, catalogues, journals, reference books, online searches and search engines, overview of additional resources (eLearning etc.), reference management.

Intended learning outcomes
[Version 1: Students know what information is needed for what purpose. They are able to locate information that is relevant within their discipline and beyond in a variety of resources and to evaluate this information. They recognise the difference in quality between information they have retrieved from specific, restricted access resources (databases) and information they have found on the free web. Students are able to manage and process the information they have found, using reference management software and eLearning tools. The module aims to equip students with the skills needed to find information and literature that is relevant to the topics of their theses.] [Version 2: Students have gained an overview of the different techniques for the identification of historical book collections. They are familiar with materials, production techniques, and design features from different epochs in the history of book production and are able to use these aspects as criteria for the identification of historical books.]
