Conventions

Unless otherwise stated, courses and assessments will be held in German, assessments will be offered every semester and modules are not creditable for bonus.

Notes

Should there be the option to choose between several methods of assessment, the lecturer will agree with the module coordinator on the method of assessment to be used in the current semester by two weeks after the start of the course at the latest and will communicate this in the customary manner.

Should the module comprise more than one graded assessment, all assessments will be equally weighted, unless otherwise stated below.

Should the assessment comprise several individual assessments, successful completion of the module will require successful completion of all individual assessments.

In accordance with the general regulations governing the degree subject described in this module catalogue:

ASPO2015

associated official publications (FSB (subject-specific provisions)/SFB (list of modules)):

13-Jul-2015 (2015-11)

This module handbook seeks to render, as accurately as possible, the data that is of statutory relevance according to the examination regulations of the degree subject. However, only the FSB (subject-specific provisions) and SFB (list of modules) in their officially published versions shall be legally binding. In the case of doubt, the provisions on, in particular, module assessments specified in the FSB/SFB shall prevail.

The module deals with phenomena of popular music in a global context. The contents focus on the reception of non-European music in Europe and North America as well as the confrontation of non-European musicians with Western popular music, the resulting cooperations and syntheses. Aesthetic, commercial and media-technical aspects will be taken into account. Music as an anthropological phenomenon is a primary criterion in the construction of cultural identities. At the same time it proves to be a carrier of intercultural transfer processes. The module develops central theoretical principles of cultural transfer research in an exemplary manner.
Intended learning outcomes
The student acquires intercultural competences. He/she is qualified to theoretically understand general discourses between music cultures and specific intercultural reception and assimilation mechanisms, e.g. specific manifestations of a "Global Pop", and to provide them using examples.

This module deals with music as a phenomenon of everyday human culture. The focus is on the European cultural area, but globalisation, inter- and transculturation processes make it necessary to look beyond the borders of Europe.
Intended learning outcomes
The student acquires intercultural competences with a European focus and a perspective going beyond the borders of Europe. He/she is able to make theoretically sound statements about music as an everyday culture.

This module studies the human being in his relationship to his music as one of the most important cultural components as well as the mutual relationship between music producers, recipients and musical products. The module deals primarily with the different musical concepts, musical actions, physical, psychological, verbal, symbolic and social behaviour as well as musical manifestations.
The student is able to theorise and exemplarily explain the reciprocity of music, music production and music reception. He/she has acquired music conceptual, psychological, sociological, semantic, and action-theoretical competences, weighted differently depending on the specific subject, in order to systematically describe the connection between people and music.

In this module, sources, musical evidence and cultural-historical conditions of European music history from the early modern period (around 1420) to the Enlightenment and their music-historiographical interpretation are studied. The three courses, which are coordinated in terms of content, deal with persons, phenomena and processes of music history. Using significant examples, the basics of specific methods of the humanities (such as philological, descriptive, comparative and analytical working methods) and of speaking about music (such as specialist terminology and use of metaphor) are taught, reflected and practised.
The student has basic knowledge of European music history from the early modern period to the Enlightenment, its sources and its phenomena. The student is able to classify this knowledge in historical contexts. The student is able to present and interpret music-historical phenomena appropriately on this basis.

In this module, the basics for correct and independent work on questions and objects of music research are studied. Basic specialist techniques are taught and practised in the two courses, which are coordinated in term of content, especially research (databases, bibliographies, subject-specific source types), bibliography (primary and secondary sources) and citation. The understanding of contents, structures and meaning of academic texts is developed, tested and reflected upon. The written and oral presentation of academic results is examined theoretically and practised.
The student has knowledge of the subject-specific research tools, methods and the academic formal requirements as the basis of correct academic work. The student is able to classify, understand and reflect upon academic texts and to reproduce their essential contents. According to the rules of good scientific practice, the student is able to present academic findings in a structured manner and appropriately to the content requirements, both orally and in writing.

Deepening the knowledge acquired in AMP 6: Role and function of music in intermedial contexts. The specific subject matters touch on optional areas of literature, film, theatre and art history, aspects of media education or also media theory, media aesthetics and communication.
Intended learning outcomes
The students deepen the knowledge acquired in AMP 6 and examine questions of mediality in music-educational discourse: They have the ability to describe music in intermedial contexts using examples. They are able to analyse the mutual relationship between music and literature, film, stage and image using examples. The students recognise the fundamental importance of interdisciplinary approaches for researching the interfaces of music and other media and also have basic knowledge of the media-related state of music in an exemplary subject area. They are able to discuss media-theoretical methods or individual strategies in terms of their aims and argumentation and to apply them to examples.
