| The module presents formal characteristics concerning the structure of human language, however, the focus lies on the linguistic analysis of the English language. Core areas of the language, such as phonetics (the articulatory and acoustic features of speech sounds), phonology (the systematic distribution of phonemes), morphology (structure of words and word formation), syntax (categories and rules that underlie sentences), semantics (meaning of words and sentences), as well as pragmatics (content and function of utterances in context and communication), are discussed and analysed against the background of linguistic variation between speakers and language communities as well as against the background of historical linguistic developments. |  |  |  |  |
| Intended learning outcomes |  |  |  |  |
| After successful completion of the module, students are able to: (a) understand basic linguistic terms and concepts; (b) identify, classify and compare language structures with the help of linguistic concepts and terms; (c) analyse basic language structures on the level of sounds, the word and the phrase; and to generate and critically reflect on general findings concerning the internal organisation of language; (d) develop an understanding of the structure of the English language from a cross-linguistic as well as sociolinguistic and historical perspective; (e) understand the function and use of language in a context as well as understand the interfaces between different areas of the grammar. |  |  |  |  |

| Introduction to literary studies. Students can choose between the introduction to English or American literary studies. English literary studies provide students with the basics of literary theory and literary studies methodology as well as with basic knowledge of the literary history of the British Isles. Moreover, students will gain insights into new anglophone literatures. In order to apply these skills, students will practise the analysis and interpretation of selected texts of all literary genres from the early modern era up to the present. American studies introduce students to the techniques of literary interpretation as well as to central literary theories and methods by dealing with US-American literature of all literary genres. |  |  |  |  |
| Intended learning outcomes |  |  |  |  |
| Students are provided with basic knowledge and methodologies of literary studies, with the ability to apply literary theories and methods to literary texts and with basic knowledge of historical backgrounds and developments. After successful completion of the module, students are able to analyse, understand and evaluate literan and literary-historical phenomena with the terminology of English or American literary studies. |  |  |  |  |

| The module consolidates skills in the core areas of linguistics by applying, reviewing and evaluating linguistic theories and models. In the area of applied linguistics, linguistic structures on different linguistic levels are analysed, taking into consideration the regional, social and text type dependent variation. Next to dealing with methods of language acquisition and the research of language contact, the complex interrelation between internal and extralinguistic factors for language variation will be analysed and discussed. |  |  |  |  |
| (a) Students identify and classify linguistic structures in the core area of linguistics; (b) They compare and critically deal with questions, models and theories of the linguistic description; (c) The students observe and evalua te methods and results of studies of linguistic structure and language variety; (d) Students develop own ideas and strategies for analysing linguistic structures and their correlation with other intra- or extralinguistic factors; (e) They apply text- and corpus-based methods to the analysis of linguistic material; (f) Students develop awareness of linguistic variation and its function in the context of discourse and society. |  |  |  |  |

| On an advanced level, seminars are offered, which, on the one hand, present an overview of different areas of applied linguistics or different structural description levels of the English language from a typological view, on the other hand, seminars that focus on a current research area of linguistics; the main focus can also be selected methodologically (for example corpus linguistics or empirical linguistics). |  |  |  |  |
| Students acquire detailed knowledge of a linguistic focus (content-related and/or methodological) and are able to summarise and critically reflect on current linguistic research; they broaden their knowledge concerning the identification and analysis of English linguistic phenomena in selected linguistic data and become aware of the relevance of linguistics and its importance for society; in first steps, they are instructed to conduct research on their own. |  |  |  |  |

| In this module, students are expected to prepare for their Bachelor's thesis. Its objective is a solid development of a literary or cultural studies topic, taking into account the current state of research. The Bachelor's thesis proves that students are able to develop hypotheses and to verify them on the basis of textual or visual objects based on a specialist issue. |  |  |  |  |
| Intended learning outcomes |  |  |  |  |
| Students learn to understand and present the state of research concerning a topic as well as to develop and argumentatively present their own topic on this basis. They train their skills of researching, of presenting research ideas critically and learn to develop a thesis. |  |  |  |  |

| Contents |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| The course provides students of all semesters with the ability to create literary texts in the English and German language autonomously. Dialogically structured and thematically instructed sessions provide the possibility to discuss and improve own texts and to be able to gain theoretical as well as practical insights into the everyday workshop of creative writing. Under methodological supervision, writing exercises will facilitate a performative access to linguistic expression and will motivate students to form their own aesthetic idiom. |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| Students acquire basic knowledge of aesthetic construction regarding literary texts (poetry, prose, drama) as well as basics concerning the significance of a reading-orientated practice of literary writing. The self-confidence concerning their own skills of writing structured texts will be increased. |  |  |  |  |  |  |
