for the Subject

Musicology

as a Master’s with 1 major with the degree "Master of Arts"

(120 ECTS credits)

Examination regulations version: 2011
Responsible: Faculty of Arts, Historical, Philological, Cultural and Geographical Studies
Responsible: Institute for Musical Research
Course of Studies - Contents and Objectives

The Master programme Musicology is defined as a scientifically aimed training. It qualifies for different professions relating to music. Competence in history of music, music analysis, cultural studies, media aesthetics, sociology of music, systematic musicology and ethnomusicology is imparted. The individually chosen profile is documented by the modules certificated in the Transcript of Records. Graduates of the programme are qualified for a wide spectrum of highly skilled professions in the fields of media, planning and organization of concerts and music theatre, music publishing, scientifically based cultural practice and music research. The qualification also affords the opportunity of different doctoral programmes in music, culture and media.

Conventions

Unless otherwise stated, courses and assessments will be held in German, assessments will be offered every semester and modules are not creditable for bonus.

Notes

Should there be the option to choose between several methods of assessment, the lecturer will agree with the module coordinator on the method of assessment to be used in the current semester by two weeks after the start of the course at the latest and will communicate this in the customary manner.

Should the module comprise more than one graded assessment, all assessments will be equally weighted, unless otherwise stated below.

Should the assessment comprise several individual assessments, successful completion of the module will require successful completion of all individual assessments.

In accordance with the general regulations governing the degree subject described in this module catalogue:

\[ \text{ASPO2009} \]

associated official publications (FSB (subject-specific provisions)/SFB (list of modules)):

\[ \text{29-Aug-2011 (2011-64)} \]

This module handbook seeks to render, as accurately as possible, the data that is of statutory relevance according to the examination regulations of the degree subject. However, only the FSB (subject-specific provisions) and SFB (list of modules) in their officially published versions shall be legally binding. In the case of doubt, the provisions on, in particular, module assessments specified in the FSB/SFB shall prevail.

Contents

In this module, objects, perspectives, methods and results of musicological research are studied. The focus is on specific examples as well as overarching trends in current research in the field. Particular importance is attached to the teacher's own work on the one hand, while on the other hand students are also introduced to increasingly independent studies. On the basis of this exchange, specific musicological projects are reflected and jointly developed.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has comprehensive insights into current research fields of the subject. He/she is familiar with exemplary projects on different subjects and issues. The student is able to assess the knowledge perspectives of a research project and to pursue his/her own research approaches.

Contents

In this module, questions of music research are discussed from the broadest possible perspective. This takes place on the level of a discursive exchange between students and teachers at the Institute. The colloquium is a forum in which either guest lecturers or the participating members of the Institute present and discuss their own research results. The perception of academic question and answer methods on subjects from the disciplinary diversity of music-researching subjects broadens the insight into subject areas and their academic exploration; the contour of the student’s own position gains in sharpness.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has gained experience with the situation of being confronted with changing and diverse topics from the broad research field of the subject. He/she is able to respond appropriately to the presentation of factual findings and substantiated theses, both orally and in writing.

Contents

In this module, questions of music research are discussed from the broadest possible perspective. This takes place on the level of a discursive exchange between students and teachers at the Institute. The colloquium is a forum in which either guest lecturers or the participating members of the Institute present and discuss their own research results. The perception of academic question and answer methods on subjects from the disciplinary diversity of music-researching subjects broadens the insight into subject areas and their academic exploration; the contour of the student’s own position gains in sharpness.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has gained experience with the situation of being confronted with changing and diverse topics from the broad research field of the subject. He/she is able to respond appropriately to the presentation of factual findings and substantiated theses, both orally and in writing.

Contents

In this module, the basics, forms and contents of aesthetic perception are studied. The focuses are on the most important music-aesthetic theories of European music history in their respective historical and social environment, but also their practical application. Using selected examples from the history of music, aesthetically reflected evaluation of music from different epochs and styles will be practised and critically discussed.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has well-founded knowledge of the history and theory of Music Aesthetics. He/she is able to evaluate musical works of art from different epochs in the context of the respective aesthetics and at the same time to reflect on his/her own aesthetic experience in a theoretically sound manner.

Contents

In this module, the relation of music to other forms of art or expression is studied with regard to the media. Objects are on the one hand current or historical theories of inter- or transmediality, on the other hand intermedial artworks and artistic works of all kinds. Their specific media weighting and meaning will be studied. Depending on the object and the interest in knowledge, communication, network, action theory, semiotic or perception-psychological aspects are focused.

Intended learning outcomes

The student is familiar with definitions of the medial as well as the inter- and transmedial. He/she is able to explore the role of sound or music in specific intermedial alliances using appropriate methods. He/she is able to present models and problems of medial interaction using examples.

In this module, the sources, musical testimonies and cultural-historical conditions of European music history from antiquity to the end of the Middle Ages (around 1420) and their music-historiographical interpretation are studied. The focus is on phenomena and historical processes in the field of music and musical thinking. Using significant examples, specific methods of the Humanities (such as philological, descriptive, comparative and analytical working methods) and of speaking about music (such as specialist terminology and use of metaphor) are taught, reflected and practised.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has in-depth knowledge of European music history from antiquity to the end of the Middle Ages, its sources and its phenomena. He/she is able to classify these in a reflected manner into historical contexts. The student is familiar with key problems of music historical research within this period. On this basis, he/she is able to present and interpret music-historical phenomena independently, sophisticatedly and method-consciously.

In this module, the sources, musical testimonies and cultural-historical conditions of European music history from antiquity to the end of the Middle Ages (around 1420) and their music-historiographical interpretation are studied. The focus is on phenomena and historical processes in the field of music and musical thinking. Using significant examples, specific methods of the Humanities (such as philological, descriptive, comparative and analytical working methods) and of speaking about music (such as specialist terminology and use of metaphor) are taught, reflected and practised.

Intended learning outcomes
The student has in-depth knowledge of European music history from antiquity to the end of the Middle Ages, its sources and its phenomena. He/she is able to classify these in a reflected manner into historical contexts. The students is familiar with key problems of music historical research within this period. On this basis, he/she is able to present and interpret music-historical phenomena independently, sophisticatedly and method-consistently.

In this module the historicity of knowledge is studied. Any knowledge and recognition is historically conditioned. The concepts of music historiography are subject to perspectives that are changing and contingent. The student reflects the historical condition of knowledge and his/her own academic approach by means of significant examples and against the respective intellectual-historical background.

Intended learning outcomes
The student is familiar with the historical conditionality of the academic approach to music, its history and its sources. He/she is able to recognise the contingency of his/her own position, to reflect and to present it methodically.

Contents

In this module, the possibilities, methods and knowledge goals* of analytical development of composed music are studied. Basic knowledge of both music theory and music history will be tested on selected works or work groups, taking both text-bound music and instrumental compositions into account. Historical composition theory, traditional academic music theory and current music theory discourses will be presented as complementary foundations of musical analysis.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has in-depth knowledge of several methods of musical analysis and has applied an exemplary selection of them. He/she is able to analyse composed music of the European-Western tradition in an appropriate way and to present the results.

In this module, the history and methods of music theory in European music history since the Middle Ages are studied. The focus is on music theory tracts and compositional teaching materials as well as the analysis of the extent to which such musical craftsmanship has been expressed* in traditional works. Using significant examples, music theoretical description systems (such as counterpoint, basso continuo, harmonics) and music analytical methods (such as reductive, structural or form theoretical approaches) will be taught, reflected and tested.

Intended learning outcomes
The student has well-founded exemplary knowledge of the history of music theory, its sources and methods. He/she is able to reflect and describe these in their historical conditionality. He/she is able to apply the learnt craft independently, sophisticatedly and critically in the analysis of music and to evaluate it for an interpretation.

In this module, the cultural significance of musical phenomena within European and non-European written cultures, contacts and transfers between such cultures, and processes of musical cultural identity formation are studied. Using significant examples, written cultural musical practises and music-related ways of thinking of different written cultures in the past and present will be studied and the cultural prerequisites and conditions of musical writing will be reflected.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has well-founded exemplary knowledge of the diverse manifestations and cultural contexts of written traditional music. He/she is familiar with the specifics of musical written cultures and has well-founded knowledge of cultural-scientific theories of writing.

In this module, the regional conditions and characteristics of music from different cultures are studied. The subject matter is the networking and exchange with other regional cultures. Specific regional music traditions are taken into account, such as their stylistic characteristics, transmission modalities or features resulting from the spatial mobility of musicians. Empirical, source-critical or text-critical methods as well as comparative analyses are applied, for example with regard to regional transfer processes, characteristics of musical forms or regional traditions of music practice.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has an idea of the geographical spectrum and the regionally differentiated diversity of global music cultures and their partly intense connectedness. He/she is able to develop and research processes and phenomena shaped by regional music and to classify them in cultural or intercultural contexts.

In this module, questions about the forms of appearance, the context of performance or use as well as the history of orally transmitted music are studied. By means of exemplary studies of unwritten and semi-written music cultures of the past or present, contexts and mechanisms of oral production, reproduction and reception of music as well as consequences for its *artful construction of a composition will be explored using appropriate empirical, descriptive and analytical methods. Furthermore, the interaction of different storage media such as writing, images, memory or sound carriers is the subject of reflection.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has well-founded exemplary knowledge of the diverse manifestations and cultural contexts of orally transmitted music. He/she is familiar with the specifics of scriptless cultures and is able to critically question traditional script-related musicological concepts in this context.

In this module, the conditions and forms of musical communication, especially with regard to the production and reception of music are studied. The object is to analyse the relationship between the producer (sender) and receiver of music in different musical cultures and historical contexts. In addition to general methods of music sociology, music psychology and music-related reception research, theoretical approaches of semiotics and general communication theory will be applied.

Intended learning outcomes
The student has a well-founded knowledge of the analysis of musical communication. He/she is able to differentiate sociologically and psychologically between different forms of music making and to create corresponding models of musical communication.

In this module, the relationship between music and society is studied from a systematic and historical perspective. Music is regarded as a social phenomenon and analysed in different musical cultures and historical contexts with their specific musical functions and institutions. In addition to general techniques of sociological structural analysis, specific techniques of empirical research will be learnt.

Intended learning outcomes
The student has the ability to independently recognise music sociological phenomena, to classify them theoretically and to formulate corresponding hypotheses. He/she is able to collect data with the help of empirical methods, evaluate and present them clearly in textual or graphic form.

In this module, the relationship between Musicology and other university disciplines is studied. Students are given the opportunity to acquire knowledge not primarily of musicological issues, research methods and results in neighbouring subjects in the Humanities, Cultural Studies, Social Sciences, Economics or Natural Sciences.

Intended learning outcomes
The student has a well-founded knowledge of the objects and methods of non-musicological disciplines. He/she has experience in interdisciplinary exchange and in dealing with non-musicological topics. He/she is able to bring musicological questions into non-musicological discussions and make non-musicological working methods usable for his/her own research.

Contents

In this module, the social function of Musicology is studied. The possible occupational activities of musicologists and their cultural and educational policy context are taken into account. The focus is on the exchange with representatives of other subjects relevant to the occupation, networking with cultural institutions as well as coaching offers for professional qualification. Based on specific cultural events, university or non-university practical projects are encouraged, supervised and evaluated. The practical application of specific academic working methods is practised as well as basic skills in the management of cultural and music mediation projects.

Intended learning outcomes

The student has a reflected self-awareness as a practically active musicologist and has gained an insight into possible vocational* fields as an example. He/she is familiar with, for example, functional text types and forms of presentation and is able to follow and participate in cultural and cultural-political discussions. He/she is able to participate in the planning, realisation and evaluation of cultural projects.
