sonellen Ressourcen des Praxispartners sowie unter Einbezug der Erwartungen und Bedürfnisse der Zielgruppen unter Zeit, und Erfolgsdruck umsetzen. Dabei setzen sich die Studierenden auch mit organisatorischen und gesellschaftlichen Aspekten auseinander.

- Die Absolvent*innen haben einen vertieften Einblick in internationale Entwicklungen in altertumswissenschaftli,chen Museen und Sammlungen wie die museums, und altertumswissenschaftliche Forschung. Befähigung zum gesellschaftlichen Engagement

- Die Projektlehre der Professur für Museologie folgt dem Service Learning,Gedanken. Die Studierenden besu,chen dabei regelmäßig Lehrveranstaltungen ("Learning") und leisten in deren Rahmen einen gemeinnützigen Dienst ("Service"), indem sie hier ein konkretes Ergebnis erarbeiten, das den involvierten Praxispartnern zur Verfügung gestellt wird. Dieser Service wird so ausgewählt, dass praktische Aspekte des theoretischen Seminar,inhalts aufgegriffen werden, um theoretische wie berufspraktische Kompetenzen zu vermitteln. Die Lernenden übernehmen dadurch gesellschaftliche und ethische Verantwortung für Andere und verarbeiten anschaulicher und besser die fachlichen Inhalte. Dabei fördert Service Learning sowohl den Praxisbezug der universitären Lehre als auch die Partizipation von Studierenden an der demokratischen Gestaltung des öffentlichen Lebens: Die Studierenden arbeiten in Teilprojekten, die erst im Zusammenwirken das öffentlich präsentierte Gesamter,gebnis ausmachen.

Persönlichkeitsentwicklung

Contents

The module is dedicated to reading ancient Near Eastern texts of the 3rd millennium BC, encompassing both literary and non-literary texts. Emphasis is normally placed, on the one hand, upon Old Akkadian texts of various genres and, on the other, upon the Sumerian tradition of the 3rd millennium, especially the Old Sumerian period (Early Dynastic IIIb) and the Ur III period. The cuneiform tradition of the late 4th and early 3rd millennia up to the Fara-period may be integrated into the curriculum. The linguistic form and the historical background of the texts read, including questions concerning the history of law, society, religion, science and ideas, will be explained and discussed in class. Individual text groups, especially archaic and proto-cuneiform texts, can be addressed in individual student presentations.

Intended learning outcomes

The student will acquire a comprehensive overview of the tradition of ancient Near Eastern texts of the 3rd millennium BC.
He/she will gain deeper knowledge of selected text groups and their historical backgrounds, including political questions as well as questions about the history of law, society, religion, sciences and ideas.
The student will have a good reading knowledge of Old Akkadian and of selected language forms of Sumerian in the 3rd millennium BC.
He/she will be able to transliterate and translate the texts assigned or read in class and to comment on both their content and formal style.
He/she will acquire the ability to transliterate, translate and classify (with regard to content) simple 3rd-millennium Akkadian and Sumerian texts beyond the class curriculum with the help of dictionaries and sign lists.

This module offers students the opportunity to receive credit for achievements related to the Master's degree in "Museum and Ancient Cultures" that they have completed during an optional semester abroad at the Egyptian partner university, Helwan University in Cairo/Egypt, in the field of Museum Studies. This may also include courses in the field of Cultural Heritage at Helwan University.

Intended learning outcomes

After completing this module, students will be familiar with the specific methodological approaches and exemplary concrete characteristics of museum and heritage work in Egypt. They are also able to recognize the extent to which differences and similarities exist on an international level with regard to practical museum work and its theoretical-scientific foundation in Germany and Egypt. This module offers students the opportunity to receive credit for achievements related to the Master's degree in "Museum and Ancient Cultures" that they have completed during an optional semester abroad at the Egyptian partner university, Helwan University in Cairo/Egypt, in the field of Museum Studies. This may also include courses in the field of Cultural Heritage at Helwan University.

Intended learning outcomes

After completing this module, students will be familiar with the specific methodological approaches and exemplary concrete characteristics of museum and heritage work in Egypt. They are also able to recognize the extent to which differences and similarities exist on an international level with regard to practical museum work and its theoretical-scientific foundation in Germany and Egypt. The students have the skills to work with originals on site in Egypt, as well as to get along with the conditions in Egypt (intercultural competence).
