Indology
as a minor in a Bachelor's degree programme
(60 ECTS credits)

Examination regulations version: 2015
Responsible: Faculty of Arts, Historical, Philological, Cultural and Geographical Studies
Responsible: Chair of Indology

Course of Studies - Contents and Objectives

The degree subject Indology is offered by the Faculty of Arts of JMU in the framework of a programme that combines a major and a minor and focuses on the fundamental principles of the two disciplines. Which degree is awarded to a graduate depends on his or her major.

Indology is a discipline that primarily uses historical and philological approaches to investigate the Indian cultural area on the basis of the available sources. Students of Indology get equipped with knowledge and skills in the most important branches of Indology and get trained in the methods typically used in the discipline. Developing a knowledge of Sanskrit, one of the classical languages of India, is an essential element of the students' training. Equipped with discipline-specific knowledge and skills as well as interpersonal and communication skills, graduates from Indology are well prepared for a wide variety of careers. They will be able to quickly familiarise themselves with, and work in, a wide range of fields. Studying Indology at Bachelor's degree level at the University of Würzburg, students

- gain an overview of the languages and literatures of the Indian subcontinent as well as facts about the intellectual and cultural history of the subcontinent from antiquity to the present day,
- develop sound reading and translation skills in Sanskrit, one of the classical languages of India, and its script
- gain a grounding in the research methods typically used in Indology,
- develop an awareness of the specific characteristics of Indian literatures, cultural traditions and the society rooted in them,
- learn some essential methods for the analysis of literary, theological and philosophical texts in their original language,
- develop the ability to appropriately delineate problems, both verbally and in writing, and to present them - using media support - in a suitable manner to a target group.

Allocation of places
12 places. Students of the subjects Indologie/Südasienskunde (Indology/South Asian Studies), Indologie (Indology) as well as Modernes Südasiens (Modern South Asian Studies) will be given preferential consideration. If and when places remain untaken or become available, they will be allocated to students of other subjects as part of a planned teaching export. Places will primarily be allocated according to the number of subject semesters; among applicants with the same number of subject semesters, places will be allocated by lot. A waiting list will be maintained and places re-allocated by lot as they become available.

We will read and translate simple Sanskrit texts (e. g. epics, narrative texts) but will not identify the grammatical forms of individual words. The main aim of the course is to read larger amounts of text, not to analyse texts in detail.
Intended learning outcomes
Reading larger amounts of text, students will become more experienced with reading Sanskrit and will expand their vocabulary and grammar skills. They will be able to extract meaning from longer text passages within a reasonable period of time.
