Subdivided Module Catalogue
for the Subject
English and American Studies
as a major in a Bachelor’s degree programme with the degree "Bachelor of Arts"
(120 ECTS credits)

Examination regulations version: 2021
Responsible: Faculty of Arts, Historical, Philological, Cultural and Geographical Studies
Responsible: Institute of Modern Philologies
Course of Studies - Contents and Objectives
The major English and American Studies is offered by JMU's Faculty of Arts, Historical, Philological, Cultural and Geographical Studies. It can be studied in the context of a Bachelor’s programme that combines a major and a minor subject. On successfully finishing the programme, candidates will be awarded the degree Bachelor of Arts (BA).

Studying for a Bachelor's degree in English and American Studies, students are trained in methods of text production and reflection as well as language analysis. They become familiar with the history and present of the English language and of Anglophone cultures and literatures across the world. In addition, students learn the key theories and methods in linguistics as well as in literary and cultural studies. Graduates will be well prepared for professions in the fields of culture and communication. They will also have gained the knowledge and skills needed as a prerequisite for embarking on a Master’s programme in English and/or American studies or in related fields.

Contents

Oral examination about the BA thesis, in which students briefly present the purpose, hypotheses and results of their theses before answering questions about the research area relevant to their thesis and discussing the results of their work in the academic context of their area of expertise.

Intended learning outcomes

Students consolidate detailed knowledge of a specialised field of research; they learn to evaluate secondary literature, important models and theories, to summarise them correctly and to apply them to an object of study; they broaden their skills of discussing their research ideas orally.

Courses (type, number of weekly contact hours, language — if other than German)

K (2)

Module taught in: English and/or German

Method of assessment (type, scope, language — if other than German, examination offered — if not every semester, information on whether module can be chosen to earn a bonus)

Oral examination (approx. 30 minutes) with term paper (1-2 pages), either as presentation of the bachelor’s thesis or as discussion of either a literary canon (Literature) or technical texts relevant to the topic (Linguistics)

Language of assessment: English

Independent academic work on a topic, which is to be agreed upon with an authorised examiner or, in the case of an interdisciplinary thesis, two authorised examiners, from the sub-areas of the discipline English/American Studies.

Intended learning outcomes

Students are expected to possess the following competences:
- Ability to write an academic work independently (description and analysis of a topic, literary research, methods and reference to theories, interpretation of data, logical conclusion and approaches to solve an academic problem).
- Ability to accomplish tasks in a given period of time.
- With their language skills, students are able to prepare and present the obtained results appropriately.

Contents
The module presents formal characteristics concerning the structure of human language, however, the focus lies on the linguistic analysis of the English language. Core areas of the language, such as phonetics (the articulatory and acoustic features of speech sounds), phonology (the systematic distribution of phonemes), morphology (structure of words and word formation), syntax (categories and rules that underlie sentences), semantics (meaning of words and sentences), as well as pragmatics (content and function of utterances in context and communication), are discussed and analysed against the background of linguistic variation between speakers and language communities as well as against the background of historical linguistic developments.

Intended learning outcomes
After successful completion of the module, students are able to: (a) understand basic linguistic terms and concepts; (b) identify, classify and compare language structures with the help of linguistic concepts and terms; (c) analyse basic language structures on the level of sounds, the word and the phrase; and to generate and critically reflect on general findings concerning the internal organisation of language; (d) develop an understanding of the structure of the English language from a cross-linguistic as well as sociolinguistic and historical perspective; (e) understand the function and use of language in a context as well as understand the interfaces between different areas of the grammar.

Introduction to literary studies. Students can choose between the introduction to English or American literary studies. English literary studies provide students with the basics of literary theory and literary studies methodology as well as with basic knowledge of the literary history of the British Isles. Moreover, students will gain insights into new anglophone literatures. In order to apply these skills, students will practise the analysis and interpretation of selected texts of all literary genres from the early modern era up to the present. American studies introduce students to the techniques of literary interpretation as well as to central literary theories and methods by dealing with US-American literature of all literary genres.

Intended learning outcomes
Students are provided with basic knowledge and methodologies of literary studies, with the ability to apply literary theories and methods to literary texts and with basic knowledge of historical backgrounds and developments. After successful completion of the module, students are able to analyse, understand and evaluate literary and literary-historical phenomena with the terminology of English or American literary studies.

Contents
In this module, students are expected to prepare for their Bachelor's thesis. Objective is a solid development of a literary or cultural science-based issue, taking into account the current state of research. The Bachelor's thesis proves that students are able to develop hypotheses and to verify them on the basis of textual or visual objects, based on a specialist issue.

Intended learning outcomes
Students learn to understand and present the state of research concerning an issue as well as to develop and argumentatively present an own issue on this basis. They train their skills of researching research ideas, present them in writing and critically refer to them.

Contents
On an advanced level, review seminars will be offered, which will, on the one hand, present different areas of Applied Linguistics or different structural description levels of the English language from a typological view; on the other hand, offer seminars that focuses on a current research area of linguistics; the main focus can be selected methodologically (for example corpus linguistics or empirical linguistics).

Intended learning outcomes
Students acquire detailed knowledge of a linguistic focus (content-related and/or methodological nature) and are able to summarise and critically look at current research of linguistics; they broaden their knowledge concerning the identification and analysis of English linguistic phenomena into selected linguistic data and become aware of the relevance of linguistics and its importance for society; as a first step, they are instructed to conduct research on their own.

Contents
On the basis of contemporary literature, the module covers the history and development of the English language from its beginning in the fifth century up to modern times. Next to the linguistic description of earlier language levels (Old English, Middle English and Early Modern English) regarding phonology, morphology, syntax and vocabulary, the change of the language is discussed in its socio-historical context and the characteristics of Present-day English are ascribed to the historical development.

Intended learning outcomes
After successful completion of the module, students are able to:
(a) identify, classify and compare linguistic structures in different language levels;
(b) understand and explain the structure of present-day English against the background of the historical development;
(c) translate medieval and early modern texts and classify them into their historical and cultural context;
(d) understand the mechanisms of language change and the complex interaction of linguistic and extralinguistic factors as well as apply this knowledge to recent developments in the English language.

The course provides students of all semesters with the ability to create literary texts in the English and German language autonomously. Dialogically structured and thematically instructed sessions provide the possibility to discuss and improve own texts and to be able to gain theoretical as well as practical insights into the everyday workshop of creative writing. Under methodological supervision, writing exercises will facilitate a performative access to linguistic expression and will motivate students to form their own aesthetic idiom.

Intended learning outcomes

Students acquire basic knowledge of aesthetic construction regarding literary texts (poetry, prose, drama) as well as basics concerning the significance of a reading-orientated practice of literary writing. The self-confidence concerning their own skills of writing structured texts will be increased.

Contents
The module consolidates skills in the core areas of linguistics by applying, reviewing and evaluating linguistic theories and models. In the area of applied linguistics, linguistic structures on different linguistic levels are analysed, taking into consideration the regional, social and text type dependent variation. Next to dealing with methods of language acquisition and the research of language contact, the complex interrelation between internal and extralinguistic factors for language variation will be analysed and discussed.

Intended learning outcomes
(a) Students identify and classify linguistic structures in the core area of linguistics; (b) They compare and critically deal with questions, models and theories of the linguistic description; (c) The students observe and evaluate methods and results of studies of linguistic structure and language variety; (d) Students develop own ideas and strategies for analysing linguistic structures and their correlation with other intra- or extralinguistic factors; (e) They apply text- and corpus-based methods to the analysis of linguistic material; (f) Students develop awareness of linguistic variation and its function in the context of discourse and society.
